ABSTRACT

A user-adaptive variable-environment system comprises a computer provided with a user recognizing unit, and an information storage ~~x~~ medium ~~which~~ to be applied to the user recognizing unit. The information storage medium stores user-environment information about environments suitable for users, and the user recognizing unit reads the user-environment information stored in the information storage medium and changes operating environments of the computer automatically so as to fit with the user-environment information.